About Rett Syndrome

Rett Syndrome is a heartbreaking neurological disorder diagnosed almost exclusively in little girls. After a normal infancy, the baby girl with Rett Syndrome loses the skills she had acquired, and faces a future most often governed by wheelchairs, feeding tubes, seizures, scoliosis, digestive dysfunction, and total dependence in all areas of her life. Rett Syndrome occurs spontaneously in approximately one of every 10,000 female births. It can strike any family.

About the Ella Foard Foundation for Rett Syndrome

The Ella Foard Foundation for Rett Syndrome was founded by friends and relatives of Ella Foard to increase awareness and to raise funds for a cure of Rett Syndrome. We believe that it only takes one person to "Champion" a cause to make difference. Please join our cause and find that "Inner Champion" because together we can make an even bigger impact on this devastating disorder!
